Online Information

Middlebury at Mills students have access to both those indexes and databases to which Mills subscribes and those to which Middlebury subscribes. See (<http://library.mills.edu/search/y>) for Mills resources. For Middlebury's online resources the Middlebury College Library Home page (<http://go.middlebury.edu/lib>). From this page there are two searching options for finding books, journal articles, and other materials. Summon, the default search box on the library's homepage, searches across the library's catalog (MIDCAT) and the majority of databases and indexes to which we subscribe. Summon supports both non-English and article-level searching. MIDCAT (click the second tab on the search widget) provides information on materials in the library's electronic and physical collections. For more detailed searching of specific databases and indexes related to Arabic, use the Arabic subject guide (<http://go.middlebury.edu/guides>) choose Arabic from among the choices on the subject pull down menu.

Newspapers

The library subscribes to an aggregate newspaper database. View today's newspapers in Arabic from Newspaper Direct:
