club ball team, but the players heads striely are not down and mine is not either. Intelligent, hard baseball always makes friends, and it is in the direction of playing this sort of ball that the team now in my charge is developing. I do not believe the Boston fans will get anything except the impression that there will be a hustling ball club at Fenway Park this year, once it gets into action.

The club will leave Memphis tomorrow night for Dawson Springs, for the first of a three-game series with the Louisville Colonels. If the game with Memphis can be played tomorrow, either Quinn or Piercey will probably pitch.

Bill Piercey put on more speed this afternoon than he heretofore has shown, while O'Doul, who was so long gathering speed also continued to cut loose. Chance reiterated this afternoon that he intends to keep McMillan on the works at second base. He also has great confidence in Fewster at shortstop, but naturally is not yet decided on third base. Ole Harris is out because of a sore arm, and not because he has been falling off in his third base play. play.

In one inning he passed three men in succession, and was hit for a single, two doubles and a triple. Southworth, Gibson and Beeckel, respectively getting the extra base hits. Bagwell and Ford were the two batsmen he winged. Bagwell was struck on the right elbow, and nad to retire. He probably will be out of the game for a few days. Ford apparently was badly stung, for he threw his bat back at the dugout and nearly crowned one of his teammates, who was awaiting his turn at bat, and had not seen the bat thrown. Yeargin and Generatic work worked the last two innings, and both were effective.

perience to enable him to join the big leaguers.
The third catcher, Tommy Long, is from Memphis, where he played semipro ball.
Bill Mullen is the star of the infielders thus far. Mullen batted .312 with Mobile of the Southern League last season, and has shown here that there was no mistake about the batting figure. In addition Mullen is an adroit fielder at third base, with a good arm and the ability to throw a runner out on a slow hit ball toward third base. The only apparent defect in his playing is his inability to smother grounders hit to his right.

VERMONT HURLER HOLDS LEHIGH TO PAIR OF HITS BETHLEHEM, Penn, april 4-In a game unusually well played for an opening contest. University of Vermont, guests at Lehigh for the past three days, defeated the Brown and White nine in a seven-inning game here. 3 to 2. Fast fielding and brilliant catches featured, marred, however, by two errors for each team, all of which proved damaging.

Newton, the Vermont hurler, allowed Lehigh only two hits. The game was called at the end of the seventh inning to enable the visitors to catch a train. The score:
